It seems just yesterday I was starting those conditioning rides in anticipation for the 2021 ride season. It was actually the end of February and we had just endured a lengthy cold spell. From that moment on I was focused on the goals I had set for the upcoming ride season. Fast forward to the last weekend in October and the sudden realization that our ride season had ended making for a long drive back home and my denial that the ride season was actually over already.

This past ride year was so much fun. It was filled with many wonderful memories. From that first rainy April ride to an amazing fall season with rides every other weekend. To the campfires and the smores, the stories shared out on the trails, and the time spent in camp with our NATRC family, they all enhanced these memories.

Now it is time once again for us to dust off our goals and evaluate what we accomplished. After that we can identify and set new goals for the upcoming ride season. There will be plenty of time during this winter break to put together an action plan that will guide us towards reaching our new goals as we strive to enhance that partnership with our horse.

We have an exciting new schedule for 2022 being put together by our ride coordinator, Mary Fettes, which includes new ride locations. The tentative schedule looks to be one of our best schedules in recent years.

In February, our region will be hosting the NATRC National Convention in Omaha. Between the excitement of the new ride schedule and the outstanding lineup of convention speakers, I will be on motivation overload. You might even see me out there de-winterizing my trailer during a snowstorm in anticipation.

See you in Omaha!

New Year - New Opportunities

By Christina Lyons - Editor

As I was putting together this edition of the newsletter, I couldn't help but get excited for all of the opportunities that the new year will bring.

I'm really excited about the ride year and all of the adventures that we will be having in our region. Since this is my 20th year of involvement with NATRC, I've committed myself to being a judges secretary for as many of the rides as I can make room for in my schedule.

National Convention is just around the corner and with Region 6 hosting the event in Omaha. I'm excited to see old friends, meet new ones, learn new information and celebrate last ride year.

What I've always loved about NATRC is the spirit, the kindness, and the tradition of encouraging each other. Yes, it's competitive and we all want to do well, but everyone is there to cheer the other person on!

Reminded me of a quote:

I love that! This year and always, let's remember that kindness matters and we are all there to help each other reach our fullest potential.

That's a reminder to me more than anyone I know actually!

As we move into the new ride year—let's look for opportunities to help each other, support one another and cheer for every one!

Update of injured horses from Kansas fires:

I spoke with Dr Mack today and had received a note from Dr Harris a couple days ago.

The majority of the horses injured and treated locally have returned home.

Dr Mack stated Chip remains inpatient but is recovering well and should go home soon. He has been a very good patient. She feels his prognosis is good, with time.

Dr Mack has two Clydesdales in care but a discharge date is anticipated.

Dr Harris has discharged the Clydesdales under her care

Tim was treated by a third Vet, locally, and he was reportedly discharged after only a couple of days

Rainbow Meadows donated $2500 to the care of the injured horses. According to Dr Mack, as a result of the generous support provided by many, she hopes not to bill for any of the horses she has treated.

My thoughts remain with those owners who lost their horses and other livestock and with the animals in recovery. Recovering from thermal injuries is a very long process.

Winter Hoof Care

There are a lot of different sources of information and opinions when it comes to winter hoof care. Cheryl Bohling, NATRC member and farrier, suggested the following:

<https://horseandrider.com/.amp/horse-health-care/winter-horse-hoof-care-14888>

Written by Fran Jurga and appearing in the Horse and Rider magazine on November 30, 2020.

Another link Bohling provided:

<https://www.horseillustrated.com/horse-keeping-winter-shoeing-solutions-for-horses/amp>

“It shows two different kinds of snow pads available,” said Bohling.
